Danville Welcome

The City of Danville is a community of approximately 930 residents, located in the Southwest section of Des Moines County. We are 20 minutes west of Burlington and east of Mt. Pleasant, just off Highway 34.

All year round, you will find residents walking, jogging, or riding their bikes, children playing at the City Park, attending many school events, volunteering at our churches and community organizations, or just working in their yards. Geode State Park is located about five miles to the southwest of city limits.

Danville is the home of the Anne Frank Connection which is located within the Danville Station where copies of the Anne Frank letters are displayed. It also consists of a museum and library. The pen pal that Anne Frank wrote to was Juanita Wagner, a Danville student. Within the museum are also World War II artifacts. For over the past five years, members of the Danville Station worked on obtaining a preWWII railcar, the kind used to transport Jews during the Holocaust. After receiving a Destination Iowa Grant in August of 2023, a railcar was purchased and delivered to the Station property. The museum is open during Library hours and there is a small fee to enter.

Our community is also home to the Danville Community School District. The PreK-12 students are in one building, recently added to and remodeled.

Daycare is provided year-round to those students before and after school, and for those babies six weeks and older. Academics, fine arts, and athletic opportunities are important to our students.

Our small community provides banking and insurance services, a mutual telephone company, a top-notch volunteer Fire Department, hairstylists, small convenience and gas station, a restaurant that recently opened, a pet grooming service, auto repair shops, a welding business, a trucking business, just to name a few.

The citizens of Danville hope you enjoy your visit to our community. We may not be as big as the other Danville's in the world but we do not mind - we love our community just the way it is.

Mediapolis Welcome

The City of Mediapolis, located at the north central tip of Des Moines County, Iowa, is a community of approximately 1,672 residents. We are a quick 15-minute drive north of Burlington along Highway 61.

Our town has a beautiful Main Street that is always improving as local developers tackle upgrading aging buildings and bringing them to be fully functional again for a new generation of residents. Our community is full of active residents who give their time to committees who organize the school and social life of the town. With the Sports Complex, Mepo on Main, school functions, parks, swimming pool, Town and Country Days (boasting the “Biggest Small-Town Parade in Iowa!”), 5 churches and all the restaurants and shops along our Main Street you will always find something to enjoy.

A wonderful addition to our town has been the placement of the Des Moines County “Freedom Rock” that is placed out front of City Hall. It has been painted in remembrance of our local Veterans, to honor their service to our country.

Our community is also home to the Mediapolis Community School District. The PreK-12 students are in one location spread over three buildings for each elementary, middle, and high school that have recently been added onto and remodeled. Daycare/ preschool is provided by the Mediapolis Childcare & Preschool that provides year-round to those students before and after school, and for those babies six weeks and older. Academics, fine arts, and athletic opportunities are important to our students.

Our small community provides banking, law and insurance services, telephone company, a top-notch volunteer Fire Department and Ambulance Service, library, hair stylists, grocery store, convenience store and gas stations, 3 restaurants, a pet grooming service, veterinary care, auto repair shops, an ice cream shop, 24-hour gym, apparel store, boutique, lumber yard, trucking business, and a coffee shop just to name a few. # JOURNEY INTO THE PAST

Nestled along the banks of the mighty Mississippi, Greater Burlington stands as a testament to the enduring spirit of American heritage. Within its streets and structures lie the echoes of bygone eras, each brick and beam whispering tales of triumphs, tribulations and the relentless march of progress. Join us on a journey through time as we delve into the captivating history of the community we proudly call home.

Lieutenant Zebulon M. Pike, an American explorer, led an expedition between 1805 and 1807 exploring the upper Mississippi River, reaching Pikes Peak in the Rockies and Mexico-Spanish Territory. Assigned after the Louisiana Purchase, Pike aimed to establish relations with Native American tribes and identify military and trading post locations. Departing from St. Louis in 1805, Pike and a small team reached what's now Burlington, Iowa, where he raised the American flag for the first time in the region.

Snake Alley, one of Burlington's top tourist spots, was constructed in 1894 to connect Heritage Hill with Downtown. Crafted from limestone curbing and blue clay bricks, it's engineered for horse traction with tilted surfaces. Comprising five half-curves and two quarter-curves, it ascends 58.3 feet. Ripley's Believe It or Not recognizes it as "Unbelievably Crooked" and the #1 Odd Spot in their Odd Spots Across America Campaign.

The Garrett-Phelps House Museum sitting proudly at the top of Snake Alley sheltered three generations of one family for over 100 years. The original portion of the home was built in 1851, and then enlarged in 1870. The three-story home has watched over Burlington through struggles, wars, prosperity, and poverty. During an especially difficult period it housed a hospital, and then a nursing school.

GARRETT-PHELPS

The Crapo Park Log Cabin offers a glimpse of the simpler life of early settlers in Iowa. Located in beautiful Crapo Park in the southeast corner of Burlington, Iowa, the cabin has been open to the public since 1971. Originally built in 1909, the cabin was used as a meeting place for the Hawkeye Natives Association.

Aldo Leopold, hailed as the father of U.S. wildlife management and wilderness preservation, was a multifaceted figure - conservationist, philosopher, writer, and educator. Growing up in Burlington, he developed a profound connection to nature, shaping his lifelong dedication to conservation. His seminal concept, The Land Ethic, originated in his hometown, drawing admirers worldwide. Stimulated by family and surroundings, Leopold's formative years instilled in him a deep reverence for the environment. His influential work, "A Sand County Almanac," emphasized the importance of preserving wilderness and fostering a moral responsibility towards nature. Leopold advocated for the protection of wildlands, leading to the Wilderness Act of 1964. His legacy extends to his contributions in ecological restoration and conservation biology. Through his writings and advocacy, Leopold's impact continues to resonate globally, emphasizing the interconnectedness of humanity and the natural world.

For the Anne Frank Pen Pal Museum, the story goes back to the Fall of 1939 when a Danville teacher, Miss Birdie Mathews, initiated a pen pal exchange for her class. Ten-year old Juanita Wagner picked a name from a list of pen pals. The girl's name was Anne Frank. Today, Danville, Iowa, a short 15 minute drive from Burlington, is one of only two places in the world to view the pen pal letters.

Visiting the Anne Frank Pen Pal Museum, located inside the Danville Station, is a moving experience. The self-guided tour takes guests on a story that starts in the 1920s. Visitors see what was happening in Danville, Iowa as well as the entire United States in the pre- WWII years. The parallel journey of Anne's family and the events in Europe are also chronicled along this timeline leading up to the Holocaust and World War II. Guests view Anne and Margot's pen pal letters to the Wagner sister in Danville and enjoy the exhibit area dedicated to the girls who wrote these pen pals letters and to their teacher, Miss Birdie Mathews. ●

GOOD EATIN'

When it comes to food, Burlington's restaurant scene can satisfy anyone's palate.

From family-owned pizzerias to an upscale steakhouse with fantastic views of the Mississippi River, the range and scope of Greater Burlington's cuisine can rival that of a big city.

"For a town our size and population, we are absolutely spoiled with the number of unique restaurants you can't find anywhere else," said Chris Gram, Executive Director of the Greater Burlington Convention & Visitors Bureau.

The renaissance of Downtown has seen a growth in the number of unique and eclectic restaurants that gives Burlington that "big city" vibe. More than 20 restaurants can be found Downtown, with The Busted Cup Brewhouse one of the most recent additions. Opened in 2023 after a major renovation of the building, the restaurant with attached specialty market offers German cuisine and a selection of beer and wine.

The Busted Cup joins other unique Downtown eateries like the Hawaiiwan Café - with a mix of Hawaiian and Midwest tastes - The Beancounter Coffeehouse and Drinkery, Thyme & Spice Company and Jerry's Main Lunch.

Downtown also hosts a number of long-established, locally-owned restaurants, like Napoli Pizza and Restaurant, Martini's Grille and The Drake. Both Martini's and The Drake also provide diners with fabulous views of the Mississippi River.

THE BUSTED CUP BREWHOUSE

"We have the most amazing culinary flavors," said Amy Moyner, Executive Director of Downtown Partners Inc. "I lived in Chicago for 10 years, and I would come back to Burlington to eat at the restaurants here because they were so good."

But good food in Burlington isn't confined to Downtown. You can find great places to eat throughout the region, such as The Broadway Bar and Grill in West Burlington. The Broadway features hand-cut steaks, pizzas and gourmet burgers amid a sports-themed motif.

If you're looking for familiar flavors, Greater Burlington abounds with many major chain restaurants, as well. Hardee's, Jimmy John's, Buffalo Wild Wings, McAlister's Deli, Billy Sims

BBQ/Wingstop, and Pizza Ranch are among national chains with local locations.

With a rich and diverse mix of restaurants and cuisine, Burlington is the destination spot for people in the Southeast Iowa and Western Illinois regions who are looking for a great place to eat without traveling hours to bigger cities.

"We are the biggest small town in a bunch of other small towns," said Dustin Roth, Marketing and Communications Director for the Greater Burlington Partnership. "There are a lot of other smaller towns that gravitate towards us because it's only a 20-minute drive, instead of an hour and a half drive." ●

THINGS TO DO

ARCADIUM AT FUNCITY

Looking for something to do in Greater Burlington? You don't have to go far, as the region is rich with places to go and things to do.

FunCity Resort and Catfish Bend Casino, a family-oriented entertainment megaplex and hotel that features a water park, bowling alley and go-kart trac, is among Greater Burlington's biggest attractions. Kids can also play Lazer Tag, as well as a number of games in the arcade, while parents can relax in the adjacent spa or grab a meal and listen to music in one of the resort's six restaurants.

FunCity Turf and Courts recently added pickleball and basketball courts to its offerings. The indoor sports facility has a total of eight soccer fields and two youth softball fields as well as pitching and batting cages. In addition to providing Burlington residents with premiere facilities to play their favorite sport, Fun City plays host to tournaments for various youth sports leagues, which draws players and spectators from around the Midwest.

"It's a family fun mecca under one roof," said Chris Gram, Executive Director of the Greater Burlington Convention & Visitors Bureau.

The Burlington Regional

Rec Plex has an outdoor array of baseball/softball diamonds, volleyball courts and walking/hiking trails. The Rec Plex is part of the City Parks Department, which oversees more than 200 acres of green space and also provides opportunities for boating, hiking and disc golf.

If you prefer golf in the traditional form, Burlington is home to Spirit Hollow Golf Course, rated the #1 Best Course to Play in Iowa by Golfweek. The 18-hole course, with its rolling terrain and tree-lined fairways, presents a challenging but fun experience for any level golfer.

The Mississippi River and nearby Geode State Park provide a variety of recreational water activities from boating and fishing to camping and hiking. All provide scenic views of the region's natural beauty.

Community Field is home to the Burlington Bees, a Prospect League baseball team comprised of college students developing skills to make it into the major leagues. Many of the players in the wooden-bat league are on the verge of or have been drafted by MLB teams, so an evening at the ballpark may bear witness to the next Jeter or Ohtani in the making.

If culture is more of your style, the Arts Center of Burlington is the hub for many creative events like the Snake Alley Art Fair, a more than 50-year-old celebration of local artists. The center also hosts popular events like the Miracle on Jefferson Street and Celebrity Battle of the Brushes as well as provides ongoing art classes and shows in its gallery.

"There's a lot here for people to do without necessarily having to go places," said Steven Brody, Executive Director of the Burlington/West Burlington Area Chamber of Commerce. ●

THE CAPITOL

EVENTS

A few years ago, someone donated an old couch to the Capitol Theater – a sort of gift to help the Downtown Burlington landmark during its restoration into a premiere venue for movies and live entertainment.

Tammy McCoy, the theater’s Executive Director, recalls placing the couch in front of the theater for a new music festival, and the public was invited to bring their own old furniture to sit and enjoy music on a summer evening. That idea sprouted into the annual Old Couch Music Festival – one of the biggest and most popular annual events in the city. While it’s no longer “bring your own couch,” the event draws thousands to the Downtown area the second Saturday in August for an evening of music, food and drink, and family fun.

It’s just one of many annual celebrations and festivals that make Greater Burlington a great place to visit.

The Capitol also hosts the annual Snake Alley Festival of Film, an event held in July that showcases independent short films from around the world. The event, held since 2012, also hosts sessions with filmmakers and screenplay table reads in addition to the screenings.

A Very Vintage Market in July brings together more than 100 vendors selling craft, antique and handmade items. The event draws more than 8,000 people looking for unique items and great deals, said Amy Moyner, Executive Director of Downtown Partners Inc. In addition, the weekly Farmers Market runs from spring to fall and provides residents with the best of local farm-to-table food items.

The Riverfront is also buzzing with its Friday Fest concerts, hosted by Burlington Riverfront Entertainment. In addition, the organization also hosts Heritage Days at the end of September, which features music, food and family-oriented entertainment.

Moyner said the Downtown area hosts more than 50 events yearly, including the Sip, Taste and Stroll in September, Witches’ Night Out in October and Holiday Open House in November.

Burlington is also host to the annual Snake Alley Criterium. The spring event is considered one of the top bicycle races in the nation and the most challenging in the Midwest. The grueling course takes participants up Snake Alley, called “the crookedest alley in the world,” by Ripley’s Believe It Or Not!

Tradition can be found in annual events like the Des Moines County Fair in West Burlington every July. The fair focuses on the area’s agricultural roots and features livestock shows and auctions as well as family-centered entertainment. In addition, the West Burlington 4th of July celebration provides a day of food, games and fireworks.

Big events are not reserved for summer. SnowBull, an indoor bull-riding rodeo that’s been a part of the community since 1993, is held every March at the Burlington Memorial Auditorium. ●

SHOPPING

Whatever you're looking for, chances are exceptionally good you'll find it in Burlington.

Greater Burlington is a mecca for shopping, being home for businesses ranging from small boutique shops to national chain stores. The retail industry is so big that it is the region's second largest employer, according to U.S. Census figures.

There are a number of retail-focused centers around the region, each with its own unique specialty and vibe. Downtown Burlington has undergone a multi-million-dollar revitalization, transforming it into a retail, residential and entertainment center. The Downtown area saw 22 new businesses open in 2023, adding to the eclectic mix of businesses, according to Amy Moyner, Executive Director of Downtown Partners Inc.

"Downtown is really the boutique experience," she said. Newer businesses like Traces Boutique and Concordia Wine and Cigars operate alongside long-time establishments like Burlington By the Book bookstore and Weird Harold's record store.

A bit further west, Roosevelt Avenue is a retail corridor where you can find many fast-food restaurants, professional services such as insurance agencies, banks and law firms as well as many other locally-owned businesses. Clothing stores like Any Wear Apparel and Brown's Shoe Fit, as well as the popular Dunn Bros. Coffee, can be found along the corridor.

Not far from there, the Agency Street corridor is home to many of the big-box and national chain stores, but many locally-owned businesses there have been a part of the area for years. Huffman's Farm and Home and Bickel's Cycling and Fitness have not only been in business for decades, but they've been active members in the community participating in local events and activities.

The Gear Avenue corridor in West Burlington is home to Westland Mall, a regional shopping center, which features many specialty stores. Not too far away is Becker's Jewelers, another long-time, family-owned business in the community.

Gear Avenue is also a center for auto dealers, including Deery Brothers and Shottenkirk Superstore. Both host a variety of auto nameplates, so if you're looking for a new car, odds are they have the brand you're seeking.

Steven Brody, Executive Director of the Burlington/West Burlington Area Chamber of Commerce credits the collaborative efforts from government, economic development groups and the business community for the continued growth of the retail community.

"There are opportunities to succeed here," Brody said.

In addition, national retailers locate stores in Greater Burlington because it's a region where people are willing to travel 60 miles or more to eat and shop.

"We may not check the first box on the population scale, but when they draw the circle a little bit larger, they realize there are enough people there to support a store," said K.C. Fleming, medical staff recruiter for Great River Health. ●

About Greater Burlington

K.C. Fleming has no problem luring people from Chicago or St. Louis to positions at Great River Health in West Burlington.

“What I hear people say all the time is that this place is way bigger than I expected,” Fleming, the health system’s medical staff recruiter, said. “There’s more services, more amenities, more of everything that people usually expect.”

The city boasts a population of 23,611, according to U.S. Census figures, but it is the center of a regional network of communities that make up the Greater Burlington area. The region, which also includes West Burlington and Des Moines County boosts the available workforce to around 250,000, which in turn creates amenities and services that far exceed those of a typical small town.

“We really do live, work, shop, eat and go to the doctor as a region,” said Jeremy Hess, Economic Development Director for the Greater Burlington Partnership. “We still live in the land where 30 miles is 30 minutes or 60 miles is 60 minutes. Many of our employees may not live in Burlington, but Burlington and West Burlington are the hub.”

It’s that potential that makes Greater Burlington attractive to everything from small businesses to national companies and chain retailers. With amenities like top-notch health care, excellent schools and a wealth of entertainment and recreational options, it also attracts people looking for an area that has a metropolitan vibe without the big city headaches like traffic congestion.

With a median household income of $51,628 and a median home price of $111,600, Burlington provides a level of livability that can’t be found in larger cities.

“We are consistently one of the most livable cities, not only in Iowa, but in the nation,” Hess said.

Greater Burlington continues to have the charm of an old Mississippi River town, but it is deeply investing in its future by building new infrastructure and supporting new endeavors designed to attract a new and younger population. Downtown Burlington's million-dollar renovation program has turned the area into a Cultural and Entertainment District with residential apartments, more than 20 restaurants, an arts center and historic theater for movies and live music. Burlington's parks department oversees more than 200 acres of green space, providing places for outdoor sports, picnicking or a leisurely stroll. The region is also close to many state parks and has direct access to the Mississippi

River, providing an abundance of outdoor activities from hiking and biking to boating and fishing. "We have more than people think and it's right here at your fingertips," Fleming said, "There's plenty of opportunities for all ages and we've got a lot of things going in the right direction." ●

UNLEASH THE FUTURE UNLEASH THE HOUNDS

From their very first day of school to the day they accept their diploma, our Grayhounds are provided with a small-town atmosphere and big-school opportunities that empower them to unleash their passion, curiosity, talent and potential.

The Burlington Community School District serves approximately 3,200 preschool through 12th-grade students across nine campuses, including Corse Early Childhood Center, which offers childcare for children ages newborn to 5 years old, 3-year-old preschool and free 4-year-old preschool. CECC also serves as a lab school for Southeastern Community College's Early Childhood Development program.

BCSD is the largest district within at least 90 miles in any direction, affording students a wide variety of learning opportunities, including STEM, Talented and Gifted programming, 19 AP and Honors classes, 12 robust Career and Technical Education pathways, and, in partnership with SCC, 28 concurrent enrollment courses.

At BCSD, we believe it's important for students to have well-rounded experiences both in and outside the classroom, which is why we offer a diverse range of extracurricular activities. With more than 30 student clubs, 12 music ensembles available as early as fourth grade, and more than two dozen sports teams — including football, swimming, girls wrestling and e-sports — we have something for everyone.

Our buildings are second to none in Southeast Iowa. The four elementary buildings were constructed in the early 2000s, followed by the middle and intermediate schools in 2011 and 2012, and Burlington High School is undergoing a $35 million renovation project slated for completion in 2025.

There's also the beautiful and historic Bracewell Stadium, whose Friday night lights were the first to be installed west of the Mississippi in 1929.

For families looking for a less traditional approach to public education, there's VIBE Virtual Learning Program, which serves K-12 students and offers remote, in-person and hybrid learning.

BCSD also is home to Club M, which matches high school mentors with K-4 mentees, and the PiECES After School Program, which provides quality after-school programming until 6 p.m. each full school day and is available to all K-6 students.

WORKFORCE

SILGAN CONTAINERS

With its location along the Mississippi River, transportation connections and affordable way of life, it's no wonder Greater Burlington has a large and diverse business base.

Already known as the “Backhoe Capitol of the World” for its Case New Holland assembly plant, Burlington is the birthplace of Winegard Co., a leader in the manufacture of television antennas, satellite dishes and internet connectivity devices. Silgan Containers, which produces 6 million cans a day for use in food packaging, calls Burlington its home.

GREAT RIVER HEALTH

The region also boasts food manufacturers like Western Smokehouse Partners, a maker of private label meat stick snacks, and Shearer’s Snacks, which makes crackers and cookies for retailers like Walmart.

“They say they make a cookie for every man, woman and child in the United States every three days,” said Jeremy Hess, Economic Development Director for the Greater Burlington Partnership.

Manufacturing is the largest industry in the region, according to U.S. Census statistics, but retail and health care are the next two key employers. With about 2,400 people on staff, Great River Health is the region's largest employer, according to Hess.

But it's not all big manufacturers that comprise Greater Burlington's workforce. Small businesses also thrive, from restaurants to retail and service businesses. National chain stores are attracted to the region's purchasing power. Tourism is a big market, as Burlington hosts everything from Viking River Cruises to youth sports tournaments.

One major draw is Burlington's location. In addition to being on the Mississippi River, the city is at the crossroads of the Burlington Northern Santa Fe main line as well as two major highways. In addition, Southeast Iowa Regional Airport provides air access to major cities like Chicago and St. Louis.

"We're very well connected, so you can get anywhere in the world from Burlington," said Della Schimdt, President and CEO of the Greater Burlington Partnership.

"The diversity in industry and jobs didn't come by chance, but through planning and cooperation from local government and business leaders," Hess said.

"We've been very careful and strategic in making sure that we don't put all of our eggs in one basket," he added. As a result, the region is more resilient during the economic ups and downs that can affect any one industry.

Schmidt adds that the cooperation of government and business puts Burlington in a strong economic position to handle future growth. For example, Amazon is planning a new fulfillment center, and the Iowa Army Ammunitions Plant - one of the region's oldest operating employers - is undergoing a multi-billion-dollar expansion. Both projects will bring new, well-paying jobs into the region.

"Our business community continues to hire and continues to demonstrate job growth and new companies, so things are not slowing down anytime soon," Schmidt explained. ●
